ABC Language Services Acquires Inlingua Princeton Translation Division

Former Translation Division of Inlingua Princeton Joins ABC as Company Marks 25 Years in Business

PRINCETON, NJ - ABC Language Services recently announced the acquisition of Princeton Translation, formerly the translation division of Inlingua Princeton, strengthening ABC's written translation capabilities and expanding its depth in specialized, technical professional language services. The acquisition became effective January 1, 2026.

The combined organization will enable ABC Language Services to better serve its diverse client base, including healthcare and pharmaceutical organizations, educational institutions, government agencies, law firms, and corporations requiring highly accurate, industry-specific translation and interpreting services. Princeton Translation will continue operating seamlessly while enhancing service delivery, technology, and data security.

Founded in 2001, ABC has seen increasing demand for complex document translation across medical, technical, legal, and corporate applications. Princeton Translation brings decades of experience and a proven approach to high-quality written translation, making the acquisition a natural strategic fit.

"This acquisition comes at a meaningful moment for us as we celebrate 25 years in business," said Sanjay Kamani, Vice President. "Princeton Translation shares our commitment to precision, professionalism, and client-specific expertise. Together, we are positioned to deliver even greater clarity and value to our clients while building for the future."

Both organizations emphasize careful matching of translators and interpreters to each project based on subject matter, expertise, technical knowledge, and linguistic specialization. Teams work within strict quality standards, confidentiality requirements, and deadlines to ensure accuracy and consistency across all deliverables.

Brigitte Sasson, President of Inlingua Princeton, commented, "Princeton Translation will continue serving clients with the same level of care, now backed by a broader operational platform."

As Princeton Translation enters its next chapter, the company is also evaluating how its brand and service portfolio will evolve to reflect its expanded scope and long-term vision: supporting industries where accurate translation and interpretation are critical, while maintaining the trusted relationships it has built.
